

New Alliance Increases Personalized-Service Office Supplier Presence In Competitive Marketplace

TORONTO, March 16, 2018 -- In an effort to continue to grow and expand business offerings to their customers, Kalyn Carter, President and CEO of Toronto-based Everyday Office Supplies aka shopeveryday.ca is pleased to announce that it has entered into an exciting new alliance with Calgary-based Digital Office Systems, aka Digital Office.ca.

Everyday Office Supplies Inc. is a privately held certified woman-owned small business located in Toronto Ontario. It offers over 50,000 quality office, furniture, and promotional products that are competitively priced for some of Canada's best known and respected businesses and organizations.

Partnering with Digital Office Systems, which also has an office in Kingston, Ontario, will expand Everyday Office Supplies reach across Canada, along with its customer base.

"I have been looking for a like-minded company that works with the small dealers and also competes with the big players in the industry, such as Staples and Grand & Toy," says Carter. "Like us, Digital Office Systems is customer-focused and highly service-oriented. We both offer that personal touch and really value helping our customers run their businesses more efficiently."

Digital Office Systems will be incorporating Everyday Office Supplies name, and both companies expect the alliance to be a seamless transition.

"We will continue personally servicing our cherished customers in the ways in which we have both built our reputations," says Sean Mackenzie, General Manager of Digital Office Systems. "With our new association, we will be able to combine and consolidate our respective strengths, such as our design services, and our marketing and sales capabilities. This will just enhance and grow what we can offer our customers."
